

Bean Tavern, Raymond (L): This 1750s structure, home to town meeting during the colonial era, was recently purchased by the town. It now needs restoration and a new purpose.

Flying Yankee, Lincoln (R): The 1935 stainless steel train has undergone decades of restoration. The re-organized friends' group hopes to acquire it from DOT, finish it, and get it operational again.

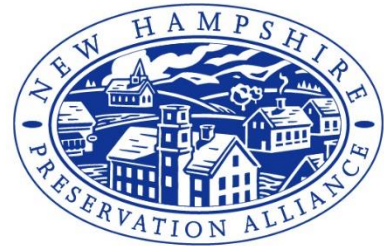

St. John's Methodist Church, Jefferson (L): Recently vacated by the local historical society, this 1868 church will soon need a new owner and creative new use.

Hill Center Church (R): An 1800 meetinghouse with 1847 renovations, the rural landmark needs some restoration and new programmatic energy to remain used and relevant.

Preservation Trades:
Our state's timber frames, slate roofs, wood windows, and stone walls cannot fix themselves and there's a real shortage of skilled craftspeople who can do this level of specialized work.

Stone School, Newington (L): This 1920 school has sat vacant since 2003 and was recently condemned. Advocates hope to see the building used for a community center.

Carroll County Courthouse (R): An attempt to convert this former courthouse into a county-wide historical museum and research center failed and the deed was returned to the county. A new use is needed.
